

The Heart Remembers Lyrics

Intro

Verse 1

I set the table for your ghost
Your coffee sits there by itself
The sun comes in but never stays
Like it knows I'm not myself

I don't take pictures anymore
They don't catch the things I miss
Like the way you used to hum off-key
Or how your smile would turn into a kiss

Pre-Chorus 1

I try to write but nothing fits anymore
Each word a stone inside my chest
And on the page each truth I've half-confessed
Every door still opens right back to you
You haunt me like a melody possessed

I've done my best
They say that time will do the rest

Chorus 1

It's not
What we leave behind
It's who stays and doesn't go
The whispers in the wind
The echo that knows

It's the laugh among friends
And the fire inside
That never surrenders
The body can learn to carry on

But the heart remembers

Transition

Verse 2

They tell me I should live again
The mural grows more sacred every year
This small town won't look away
Though I came here just to disappear

A reporter with a notebook chasing stories
A painter learning to color light again
Me and this guitar in my hands
We all find our place among them in the end

Pre-Chorus 2

I start to write and the words fit somehow
Each word a hope inside my chest
And on the page each truth I've half-confessed
Every door doesn't open only back to you
You soothe me like a melody possessed

I've done my best
They say that time will do the rest

Chorus 2

It's not

What we leave behind
It's who stays and doesn't go
The whispers in the wind
The echo that knows

It's the laugh among friends
And the fire inside
That never surrenders
The body can learn to carry on

But the heart remembers
Yeah, the heart remembers

Solo

Final Chorus

It's not
What we leave behind
It's who stays and doesn't go
The whispers in the wind
The echo that knows

It's the laugh among friends
And the fire inside
That never surrenders
The body can learn to carry on

But the heart remembers

Outro

The heart always remembers
