

A Frog

A frog won't give you warts,
You need a toad for doing this.
And no one really becomes a Prince
By giving a frog a kiss.

But frogs are certainly good leapers,
As they hop from pad to pad.
So, the life of a frog
Is not very bad.

They say frogs are amphibious,
Living on land or in a pond.
And if one jumps high enough,
They may fly to the great beyond.

Frogs come from baby tadpoles
That don't look like frogs at all.
They look more like baby catfish,
That sometimes like to crawl.

But soon those tiny tadpoles,
Start to drastically change.
When all their tiny body parts,
Are magically rearranged.

Soon long legs start sprouting
From their butts at the rear.
And tiny little legs jump up front,
Just behind their ears.

I've heard of frogman, I've eaten frog legs,
And even had a frog in my throat.
The only thing I have not seen,
Is a frog-skin winter coat.

Thank God!
