

A Ride That Slays

Most children today know very little about sleighs,
Even fewer have any sort of clue on how to drive one.
But “back in the day,” with some snow and runners,
It was all you needed for wintertime fun.

You’d find a hill,
(Outside of course)
And if you were lucky,
You’d even find a horse!

Fastening horse to sleigh,
And jumping on board,
You’d be on your merry way,
And you’d soon have your reward.

Over the river and through the woods,
At speeds that were unsurpassed.
Racing round corners through the snow,
Sometimes tumbling and sliding on the grass!

No shooting at aliens or conquering a foe,
Just the joy and laughter and a mouthful of snow!
