

Covid's Unlikely Gift

Most would never think a pandemic could have any merit,
All the pain and suffering it brings.
But some would argue if you grinned and beared it,
You may have cause to sing.

Covid has taught us to care for each other,
That our neighborhood is larger than we think.
That rich or poor we are all together,
And quite honestly that can sometimes stink.

Strangers aren't always strangers,
When we all face the same fears.
Enemies are not always enemies,
When we shed the same tears.

When Covid is just a memory,
And I pray that it soon will be.
The world will have survived a tragedy,
Unmatched in all of history!
