

Halloween

Halloween is the scariest of all holidays,
We are treated or tricked in so many ways.
It's a night we send children out begging for candy.
Then we take our share, hide 'em in the pantry.

It's a night of monsters, goblins, and ghosts,
Princesses, dinosaurs, and even headless hosts.
Decorated with jack-o-lanterns while witches brew,
Bats and spiders and skeletons everywhere too.

Most of all it's a night of wild imagination,
When you can become anyone and need no explanation.
But you're wrong if you think Halloween is just for the young,
When the sun goes down, is when the real terror is begun.

Adults join in with their sexy costumes and disguises,
Having their own idea of improper surprises.
So, really adults never outgrow the desire to scare,
Or holler "Boo" from pretty much anywhere.

Happy Halloween to everyone, both big and small,
May your treats be plenty and your tricks fool us all.